

To Whom It May Concern

I am writing to recommend Steven Bucaille for a position that requires strong technical skills, a deep understanding of computer vision, and a collaborative approach. I have witnessed Steven's contributions to the Hugging Face transformers repository, which have been of great quality.

Steven contributed three main PRs, including two model additions; Model additions are no easy task and require the ability to deep dive in research code, identify the core components, and to rewrite them as production-ready code. Steven specialized in the SuperPoint and SuperGlue models, which have since then been merged to the library.

Steven's contributions are technically sound, and well-documented, and user-friendly. He demonstrates strong problem-solving skills, attention to detail, and a collaborative spirit. Model contributions are never simple and often require significant back-and-forth; this can be demoralizing for many, which result in abandoned pull requests. This was not the case for Steven, who persevered.

I highly recommend Steven for any role that requires these qualities.

Sincerely,

Lysandre Debut
Chief Open-Source Officer
Hugging Face
